A Message from Terri

Welcome! I'm so glad you're here! I'm Terri Britt, and I am an intuitive healer and spiritual coach. For years I've been guided to help women love and nurture themselves into abundance and miracles. It wasn't something I planned. Nor did I ever believe this would be my life's calling.

For a big part of my life, I lived in emotional angst and feelings of lack. Never in my wildest imagination did I think I would want to help women. In fact, I often saw women as my competitors and believed I had to prove that I was better than them. I never felt like I was enough. I didn't feel as if I belonged. And I definitely didn't feel loved. I lived my life on a hamster wheel of stress and struggle, always trying to prove my worth and that I was good enough to be loved.

I received a wake-up call the night I won Miss USA 1982. I will be forever grateful for that opportunity, but in that moment of winning, I was shocked to discover that I felt as if there was something still missing in my life. I thought winning a title like Miss USA would fill me up and make me feel loved, but it didn't. It would take me years to uncover the reasons for the lack I felt inside.

It was when I decided to heal my emotional pain that I finally discovered what had been missing all along: a deep connection to myself and to God. As I committed to loving myself unconditionally, I let go of the need to prove my worth. My world opened up, and I stepped into a magical adventure. I let go of lack and opened up to receive God's unlimited abundance—simply for being me. I tapped into the intuitive, wise, creative, passionate, and dynamic woman I was created to be. My walls came down, and my heart blew open!

Not only did I shift, but so did all of my relationships. Where there had been anger, frustration, and blame in the past, it all slipped away. Greater intimacy and communication became the norm.

What came next thrilled and shocked me! I saw my friends and family begin to love themselves unconditionally. My decision to heal affected everyone for the better. That's when I knew loving myself was my greatest act of service.

Miracle after miracle showed up, especially when I found my deepest life calling: inspiring women to love and nurture themselves into abundance and miracles so the world can watch us and learn.

Women Leaders of Love is the culmination of years of not only shifting my life, but also helping women from around the globe to heal. It wasn't, however, until I gave myself full permission to unleash my greatest act of service that I stepped into this mission. Women Leaders of Love was a Divine download guiding me to bring women together to support one another in taking a stand for loving ourselves first.

Unconditional love is the foundation for everything you desire in your life. It is the key to peace, joy, happiness, and inner and outer abundance. It is how we open up to receive all of God's miracles. And it starts with each of us deciding to love and nurture ourselves first.

In this book, I'm going to share with you the number one massive mistake women make that shuts us, and others, down to receiving abundance, and why unconditional love is the key energetic component to remedy it.

I'm going to explain the Law of Vibration and how, as you love yourself, you raise your Worthiness Quotient.

You'll also discover why Women Leaders of Love is at the center of a global shift. We are being called to step into our greatest act of service, setting examples of unconditional love in our homes, workplaces, communities, and the world.

I know you may be questioning whether you feel like a Leader of Love, or whether you are capable of making this kind of shift, but by the end of this book, you will have three key steps that will guide you not only into your greatest act of service, but also to your deepest calling as a Woman Leader of Love. If you're ready to live a life filled with passion, purpose, abundance, and miracles, let's get started!

With love and light,

Terri Britt

Women Leaders of Love

Mission Statement

Women Leaders of Love is a movement of women who accept the leadership role of courage to take a stand for re-defining love. We are no longer willing to put our voices, our passions, or our desires on the backburner, believing this is love.

Women Leaders of Love stand for truth, being real, and being kind and gentle to ourselves. We are women who love by expressing our unique gifts, no holds barred. We are passionate, playful, sensual, and dynamic.

We no longer perform for approval. We are the leaders of our own lives, embodying the intuitive, wise Divine Mother within each of us.

We are messengers of this new definition of love. We live as pioneers and joyful examples in our homes, communities, and the world, knowing THIS is our greatest act of service as others watch us and learn.

We support and celebrate one another, knowing that as we lift each other up, we heal pain and separation.

As Women Leaders of Love, we shift the world into Divine Love, creating a Global Enlightened Family of peace, acceptance, and unconditional love.

And it begins with each of us loving ourselves first.

Open Up to Abundance & Miracles

We've been ingrained with a belief that life is a competition.

So, we're all striving to get ahead.

But when you realize that each of us is unique and has distinct gifts to share, you discover there is no competition.

You don't have to fight and scramble to get ahead.

As you honor and love the way you were created, your gifts are revealed.

You align your heart with God.

And, as you do, you open up to abundance and miracles.

Loving Yourself First

Have you ever asked yourself why we're all living on a hamster wheel of stress and struggle? Or why so many are competing, trying to "win," and get ahead?

Do you ever feel this way either with your work or with your relationships?

Well I felt that way for years, so I made it my mission to uncover the answer. I've been studying the energy behind stress and struggle for over 20 years, and this is what I've discovered: We're all stressed because we live in a world that says if you "get it right," if you work hard enough, are the best, or if you win, you will feel happy and successful. You will feel as if you "fit," as if you belong, and as if you're enough.

I don't know about you, but when I look at the world, most people don't seem very happy. In fact, they seem somewhat numb or depressed. Relationships and marriages are falling apart. Rage is rampant. And many seem to simply be settling with the status quo. They go day-to-day, working themselves into the ground, hoping for something that will turn their lives around.

We think our drive is for happiness, money, and success. We believe these things will fill us up. So, we work that much harder trying to prove our worth. But underneath it all is one truth: We want to feel protected, safe, and supported. We want to feel nurtured. We want to feel connected. We crave to feel loved.

We want to know that we matter, that we are of value, and that we are seen and heard. We don't want to be alone. In the past, if we were alone, we died. So, we drive ourselves to "stay with the tribe." And, as a result, we live in survival mode. But as long as we continue to perform, trying to WIN love and approval, we will always come up short. And there is one core reason behind this: the low vibration of the energy we emit when we perform.

It is our low vibration when we perform that keeps us in survival mode.

When you perform trying to "get it right" to win love, approval, and life's rewards, you send out an energetic message that says, "I'm not loveable just the way I am. There is something wrong with me. I'm not worthy." And because you're holding the thought and feeling that something is wrong with you, you emit the vibration of shame. The fact that you feel you haven't "done it right," mixes in guilty feelings. These are the two lowest vibrations on the energetic totem pole.

Science tells us that everything is energy. And energy vibrates. The plants, trees, cars, and even the chair you sit on are made up of energy. This includes you and me.

The Law of Vibration says your energy field emits a certain vibration depending on your thoughts and feelings. If you feel lower-level emotions like shame, guilt, resentment, anxiety, depression, sadness, or anger, you send out a lower vibration.

If you feel passionate, playful, peaceful, joyful, or any other high-level emotion, you radiate a higher vibration. And because the Law of Attraction tells us "like attracts like," the vibration you emit attracts things with similar vibrations.

As you continue to perform trying to "get it right" to prove your worth and send out the low vibration of guilt and shame, you will attract people and situations into your life that mirror this energy back to you. Your life will feel stuck in a rut and difficult. You will live on a perpetual hamster wheel of stress, never feeling as if you've "done it right" or as if you're "good enough." But when you move into a high vibration of inner abundance, you attract outer abundance. Your life becomes a joyful flow of magic and miracles. Every need is met, and you feel loved and supported simply for being you.

Shifting into a higher vibration is the key to a life you love!

So how do you end this madness and move into a higher vibration? You STOP the PERFORMANCE and COMMIT to UNCONDITIONAL LOVE.

Loving yourself unconditionally moves you into a high vibration!

But here's the problem. Most of us have a deeply ingrained belief that says loving yourself is wrong. You have to follow the Good Girl Rules to be loved.

The Good Girl Rules say, “Treat everyone else as more important than yourself. Give others’ opinions and feelings more power than your own. Bury your emotions. Put on your happy-face mask. Don’t rock the boat. And whatever you do, hide your light.”

The Good Girl Rules translate to one core belief: “I can’t receive simply for being me. I’m not allowed to have abundance and the things I want until someone tells me it’s okay or that I’ve worked hard enough.” In other words, “Being Good = Love.”

Being good shows up as shutting down your voice and not expressing your thoughts, feelings, hopes, desires, and dreams. When you’re too busy to go to the gym and love your body, you’re playing by the Good Girl Rules. When you don’t tell your boss your incredible ideas, thinking it might rock the boat, you’re denying yourself and being good. When you put your family or friends first and feel exhausted, you are trying to be good, believing this will win you love. The list goes on and on. And we’re all doing it because we want to feel nurtured and loved in return.

We deny ourselves because we want to be nurtured and loved in return.

Winning love and approval never fill you up. You may think they do for a moment, but then a small voice inside of you whispers, “There is still something missing in my life.” So, you stay on the hamster wheel, trying to get it right.

We think if we deny ourselves and work ourselves into the ground, only then will our needs be met. This is where women go wrong. Our biggest mistake is living by the belief that says we must play by the Good Girl Rules to receive a life we love!

THE #1 MASSIVE MISTAKE women make is living by the belief that says we must be good to receive abundance and love.

Playing by the Good Girl Rules perpetuates pain and separation. The Good Girl Rules keep you at a low vibration. As you deny who you are, you separate yourself from the way you were created. You disconnect from God. Not only are you putting yourself on the backburner, but you’re also putting God last.

The Good Girl Rules disconnect you from God and keep you at a low vibration.

You were created as a unique being. Everything about you is of God. You are perfection, inside and out. Your quirks, your thoughts, your feelings, voice, hair, eyes, body, EVERYTHING is God's perfection. And in that perfection are your gifts. As you dishonor your uniqueness, you stay at a low vibration, making life hard. But when you say NO MORE to trying to be good and say YES to the way you were created, you move into unconditional love and align with God. In other words, loving yourself is putting God first.

Our ultimate journey as humans is to be in alignment with God. It is here where we find what's been missing all along. And in this alignment, we shift into a high vibration, opening up to receive God's unlimited abundance and miracles.

Loving yourself is putting God first.

THIS is the path to a high vibration and unlimited abundance.

I realize that you may possibly feel a little apprehensive thinking that as you love yourself, you are putting God first. Many of us were raised to believe that this is wrong. That belief says, "Putting God first means you have to deny yourself and be a good girl to be loved by God."

Were you raised with this belief?

Here's the real truth about being good: You're performing. And if you're performing, you are acting!

Think of the actors you see in movies. They are not being themselves. They are creating an illusion for the movie. We do the same when we don't love ourselves unconditionally. We are creating what we want people to see. This is why we put so much energy into how we look, how much money we have, how successful we are, and on and on. It's why we see women being airbrushed in magazines and why there is so much emphasis on sexual exploitation. It's all because we are programmed to find love outside of ourselves. We're not only trying to be good, we're trying to be the best so that we can compete to win love and approval! And in doing so, we disconnect from true love and live at a low vibration.

Women are the nurturers of the world. We give and give at the expense of ourselves. As we try to be good, shutting down our voices, passions, and dreams, people watch us and learn. Our actions send a message that says, "It's not okay to receive. And THIS is love." But it's not. It's lack, and it's creating havoc on our planet.

We think we're doing the world a great service by being good and denying ourselves when, in fact, we're perpetuating a cycle of pain and lack.

Lack is the foundation of feeling like you're "not enough." It is why you feel you can't break through your glass ceilings or have the relationships you want. It's also the reason for greed and power struggles. And it's all based in the false belief that it isn't okay to receive.

Lack is why we compete. It's why we drive our kids into the ground in schools, sending a message that they need to be the best to have success. We think we're preparing them for the future, but we're really setting them up for failure. As adults, we carry this belief into our work, relationships, families, communities, and the world.

Lack says there is something wrong with you. But here's the kicker: As long as you continue to perform and disconnect from who you are and God, trying to get it right, you will continue to live in lack. And so will the world around you. Lack prevents you from trusting that there is abundance for everyone, including you. When you don't trust that you are enough, there is no peace. Peace begins when you find it within. Unconditional love is the way there.

To stop the cycle of pain that permeates our world, we each have to take responsibility to heal the lack inside of us and become examples of inner abundance, raising our vibrations to match the outer abundance we crave.

Making this kind of change is scary. I get it. But what's scarier is the downward spiral we are all on!

Unless each of us as individuals decides to shift energetically, the pervasive negativity in our world will continue to grow.

We have to say NO MORE to the hamster wheel of performing and self-denial. And it begins when each of us decides to take back the authority of our lives and become Women Leaders of Love.

We women have the power to shift the planet. As we give ourselves permission to break the Good Girl Rules and open up to receive for who we are and the way we were created, we send a message to the world to do the same.

We've made tremendous progress to take back the authority of our lives since the Women's Movement in the 60s. However, instead of embracing our natural gifts as women, we've taken on the ways of men. It's as if we've all gone to battle. And now the world is reflecting this back to us. We need an energetic shift. And we women are being called to lead the way.

To bring the world into peace and harmony, we women are being asked to create it within ourselves first. We have to embrace the wise, intuitive, passionate, dynamic women we were created to be. We have to love ourselves unconditionally and say YES to RECEIVING!

Unconditional love = Abundance

Unconditional love is the foundation for everything you want in your life. If you want better relationships, this is the way. Unconditional love for yourself is the key to a greater career and more prosperity. It is also the source for better health and creativity. Putting God first by loving yourself is the source for peace, passion, and purpose. Everything you desire can be yours when you love yourself first and open up to receive abundance.

As you give yourself permission to receive,
you align with God.

Receiving looks like taking time to slow down and meditate, pray, and journal daily. It looks like putting the focus on your inner world to clean up the false beliefs that keep you in lack.

Receiving is about making playtime for yourself. Following your passions, speaking up in all of your relationships, sharing your thoughts and feelings, setting boundaries, and sharing your gifts are all acts of receiving. Giving yourself permission to tap into your intuitive, wise self is receiving. Anything that makes you feel joyful and connected is an act of receiving.

Opening up to receive by giving yourself permission to love yourself unconditionally makes you feel guided, loved, and supported simply for being you. You heal pain and lack by loving yourself. And as you connect to God and tap into the Divine within, you raise your Worthiness Quotient and open up to miracles.

Your Worthiness Quotient is how much you are open to RECEIVING God's unlimited abundance.

How high or how low your Worthiness Quotient sits is determined by how much unconditional love and acceptance you have for yourself. The more you love yourself into this high vibration, the more nurturing and love you'll receive in return.

You may be thinking you are already open to receiving. Maybe you feel as if you've broken the Good Girl Rules and have given yourself a voice. Or you've learned to set boundaries. Or you're going after your dreams. And, yet, there is still something that isn't quite working in your life. If that's the case, it's most likely due to guilt and the underlying theme within all the Good Girl Rules that says it isn't okay to receive. Deep inside your subconscious mind there are hidden beliefs that tell you, "I'm not allowed to be nurtured and loved simply for being me."

Our world tends to sit in a victim mentality. Everyone blames each other for their lack and unhappiness. And it's all based in the false belief that says, "It's not okay to receive simply for being me." But here's the truth: It's the vibration of how we treat ourselves that causes our pain and suffering.

It's the vibration of how we treat ourselves that causes our pain and suffering.

No one is doing it to us. We're doing it to ourselves!

Imagine what it would feel like if you had a high Worthiness Quotient and felt incredible peace and joy. How would it change your life if you knew you were loved, nurtured, and protected by your own actions? How would it feel to be so connected to God that you knew without a doubt that all your needs were met? Would you make changes? Would you follow your passions? Would you speak up more, but with a loving energy rather than shouting out in anger at the world? Would your relationships change? Would you step out of the shadows and into the light, sharing your gifts with others? Would you give more?

The irony of loving yourself unconditionally is that you want to give more. You feel so full and at peace that you no longer want to withhold love from anyone. As you move into inner harmony, your whole life becomes an act of service.

Can you imagine what the world would be like if everyone had a high Worthiness Quotient? People would take responsibility for their own happiness and healing. Blame, judgment, and anger would stop. Peace and harmony would prevail.

We women are being called forth to take a stand for unconditional love. As we say NO MORE to PERFORMING and YES! to LOVE, we create peace and harmony within. We step into our greatest act of service and set the tone for the world to watch us and learn.

We are on the cusp of a great awakening in our world.

And women are the leaders to take us there.

Are you ready to live a life of abundance? Are you ready to stop playing by the Good Girl Rules of self-denial and take back the authority of your life? Are you ready to stand for unconditional love and unleash your greatest act of service as a Woman Leader of Love?

You now have a clear picture of why it is so important for each of us to shift how we live in the world. You have found your way here because YOU ARE READY FOR THIS SHIFT!

It is time to release all of your guilt and shame. It's time to love yourself unconditionally first. And the only way to do that is to treat yourself the way you've always wanted to be loved. It's time to be the Divine Mother to yourself and raise your Worthiness Quotient to abundance.

The Divine Mother is the eternal beauty within. She is the kind, compassionate, fun, loving, playful, creative, passionate, sensual, dynamic, receptive, and intuitive woman that resides deep inside of you. She is the "enlightened mom" to that lost little girl buried in your heart who is waiting to be loved.

The Divine Mother says, "No more guilt and shame!" She is the courageous Woman Leader of Love. She takes you by the hand across the divide of lack so you feel loved, supported, protected, and nurtured.

The Divine Mother takes you to God.

If you are ready to be the Divine Mother to yourself and step into your greatest act of service as a Women Leader of Love, it's time to cross the divide of lack and align with God. Raising your Worthiness Quotient is the pathway there. The three steps on the following pages will help you get started!

3 Steps to Raise Your Worthiness Quotient

1. Redefine Love

The old way of “doing love,” denying yourself, isn’t loving at all. You probably learned this way of being from your family, teachers, friends, and bosses. And now you make them the authority of your life, giving their opinions and feelings more power than your own. And, thus, you often feel stressed and buried in lack, performing to win love. But you now know this truth:

Love doesn’t come from the outside world. It comes from within.

It is time to redefine love. It’s time to take a good look at your life to see the truth. This is the first step to raising your Worthiness Quotient and becoming a Woman Leader of Love!

Think about your life. Have you bought into the belief that says denying yourself is the loving thing to do? Do you live by the Good Girl Rules?

Do you shut down your wants, desires, and dreams out of fear that you will hurt others? Do you fear that you’ll be abandoned or rejected? Do you play small because you’re afraid someone will attack you or abuse you for playing big? And do you shut down your wisdom and intuitive gifts for fear that someone will tell you that you’re wrong?

If you say yes to any of these things, you are living by the old definition of love. You’re disconnecting from your true self and God. And you’re keeping your Worthiness Quotient low.

I want to invite you to check in with yourself for a moment. Do you really feel loving when you deny yourself?

If you’re like most women, you feel suppressed, or as if something is missing in your life. Maybe you feel angry, resentful, judgmental, negative, sad, or depressed. And then before you know it, you’re taking out your pain on the people around you. Well, I don’t know about you, but it never feels as if someone is very loving when they're buried in negativity and lashing out at you. Denying yourself is definitely not the loving thing to do!

To tap into the Divine Mother inside of you, go into a state of awareness of when you are living by the old definition of love. See how it makes you feel. Pay attention to how you treat yourself and others when you are in this low vibration. Do you withhold love from them? Do you withhold love from yourself and go into negative mind chatter? Do you get angry or sad? Does life feel hard to you? Stay in that state of awareness.

Now think about the new definition of love and how it affects others.

A NEW DEFINITION OF LOVE:

As I love and nurture myself into abundance, others learn from my example.

By re-defining love, you take a giant step into your deepest calling and greatest act of service as a Woman Leader of Love. And it starts when you commit to unconditional love.

2. Stop the Performance!

The second step to raising your Worthiness Quotient and becoming a Woman Leader of Love is to STOP THE PERFORMANCE! This means taking back the authority in your life and giving yourself permission to be fully authentic. This can be rather daunting since we often have no idea who we truly are. We've been so programmed to believe that we have to be someone other than ourselves that we often feel lost.

To stop the performance, think of yourself as the Divine Mother who is watching over your inner child. Become an observer of your life. Pay attention to your feelings and see who and what you react to negatively. Your negative reactions are the little girl inside of you hurting.

Your negative reactions are tremendous gifts.

They are messengers telling you the little girl inside of you is hurting.

Allow your feelings to take you back to the false beliefs and Good Girl Rules that are driving you into the ground. These are the beliefs that tell you something is wrong with you, or that you should “be better.”

As you go into a state of awareness of your feelings and how you’re playing by the rules of self-denial, stop, take a breath, and ask, “Is this my truth? Am I honoring the way I was created? Or am I seeking love outside of myself?” Then give yourself permission to take back the authority in your life and be the real you!

Remember this truth: When you perform for someone believing it’s the loving thing to do, you’re being dysfunctional and co-dependent. You’re helping to clip that person’s wings from being able to fly. In other words, you’re teaching that person how to put God last in his or her life.

As you give yourself permission to “get real” with the people around you, you give them an incredible gift: permission to stop performing, too!

3. Nurture Yourself into Abundance

As you make your way through the first two steps, you’ll most likely have one of two things happen. You’ll either have an “aha” moment about what you need to do to love yourself. Or, you’ll realize that your intuition has been guiding you all along, but you simply haven’t acted upon it.

Staying idle is the absolute worst thing you can do when you know that you’re being called to make a shift. That’s when the little girl inside of you throws a temper tantrum, screaming things at you such as, “I hate you! You never listen to me! Why won’t you pay attention to me? Life is not fair. I feel hopeless.” Or, “Why can’t I break through these glass ceilings? Everyone else can have what they want, but I can’t.”

These negative thoughts and feelings are your inner child hurting and in pain. Every time she reacts this way and you don’t mother and nurture her, you keep yourself at a low vibration.

To stop the pain and suffering, you must treat that little girl inside of you as if she matters. You have to listen to her, love her, AND act upon the messages you receive from her.

Taking action means doing things such as saying what you need, changing jobs, setting boundaries with your kids if you're a mom, or leaving an unhappy relationship. The list is endless. Only you know what you need to do to love yourself first.

You align with God as you stand up for the little girl inside of you. And in this connection, you feel nurtured, guided, supported, protected, and loved. You set a vibration that says you are worthy and deserve to be loved. And then that is what shows up.

Nurturing yourself sends an energetic message out to the Universe that says,
“YES! I AM WORTHY! I deserve to be loved simply for being me.”

Taking a stand without guilt is the ultimate act of loving and nurturing oneself. Taking a stand doesn't mean you have to put up your fists. That's the old way of going to battle. Taking a stand for unconditional love means that you know that you are a child of God and that everything you need is waiting on you. You now understand the Law of Vibration and the Law of Attraction, and that you have the power to shift. You access that power when you re-define love, stop the performance, and nurture yourself, raising your Worthiness Quotient to abundance.

Sharing the Gift of YOU

Your greatest act of service for yourself, your family, your community, and the world is being a courageous Woman Leader of Love and sharing the gift of you! As you tap into the Divine Mother inside of you and honor and love the way you were created, you tap into your eternal self, filled with beauty, grace, and wisdom. It is here where your Divine gifts are revealed.

Mothering and nurturing these gifts take you on a magical journey. The more you explore and embrace your gifts, the worthier you'll feel, and your journey will get easier. You will begin to trust that you are supported, guided, and loved—simply for being you.

No longer will you race from day to day on the societal hamster wheel of stress and struggle. No longer will you live in survival mode. Instead, you'll be guided by the Divine and take inspired action. You will rest when you feel guided to rest. You will play and create. You will attract everything you need because you're in "love mode" instead of survival mode.

As you deepen your walk of love, the more you'll raise your Worthiness Quotient and set a thriving example for others to watch and learn from. People will see how joyful and peaceful you are. And, they will see miracle after miracle show up in your life. They'll want to know more and come to you for your wisdom and guidance.

Being an example of inner and outer abundance
IS your greatest act of service.

Deeply ingrained within us is the belief that we are not enough and that we have to win love and approval. But when we stop playing by the Good Girl Rules and love ourselves without guilt, we give the world the greatest gift. We show everyone how to step off the hamster wheel of stress and struggle and create a life they love.

Are you ready to end the number one massive mistake women make? Are you ready to open up to receive AND at the same time make a tremendous difference in the world? If you are, I invite you to be a courageous Woman Leader of Love.

Take a stand for unconditional love. Share this message of love everywhere you go. And when in doubt as to what love would do, ask yourself, "How can I honor God today by honoring the way I was created?" Embracing ALL of you is ALWAYS the loving thing to do!

The more we stand together, the greater change we affect in the world. And it all begins when we each decide to raise our Worthiness Quotient and unleash our greatest act of service as Women Leaders of Love!
